

Michal Shinwell is a policy analyst at the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD). Based in the Statistics and Data Directorate, she works on measuring, reporting and analysing data about people's well-being, with a focus on measuring progress on the Sustainable Development Goals, as well as the impacts of business on well-being and sustainability.

Prior to joining the OECD, Michal worked as a Senior Economist in the Israeli National Economic Council and before then at the Israeli Ministry of Finance's budget department in the areas of environmental protection, climate change, inclusive education policies and measuring well-being. She holds a Bachelor's degree in Politics, Philosophy and Economics from Hebrew University and a Master's in Business Administration from Ben-Gurion University.